

Ashley Davis is that rare leader who is unafraid to be tender, raw and real. Her presence simultaneously inspires confidence, trust and the freedom to seek transformative, compassionate solutions for the most intractable challenges faced by both individuals, and society at large.

For the last decade, Ashley led Corporate Responsibility at Cole Haan, where she coached, guided, developed, and implemented leadership practices and business operations as a means to create a more sustainable future, by fostering shared values across the value chain and the business ecosystem.

She is as at home at The Aspen Institute, where she is a First Movers Fellow, Leadership Coach, and Advisory Board Member, as she is surfing the waves in Sri Lanka, where she nurtures emerging social entrepreneurs and rekindles her own soul's flame.

It's this combination of embodied wisdom, corporate savvy, and values-based decision making that makes Ashley a powerful ally in reimagining success and impact to be more equitable and fulfilling.

Her latest endeavor, Ashley Davis Collective, aims to question the status quo, shift the collective consciousness of impact leaders towards leading change from within, and empower big hearted rebels to make their mark.